Although, we can't guarantee that it will work on all routers, this tutorial is definitely worth a try. If it does not work, I would recommend using google to find another tutorial that does work. This is the first part of a multiple part tutorial series, for this tutorial we will be using the No OSP-3727A1. This firmware supports wireless security with RADIUS authentication, which can be configured using the web UI or through the web RADIUS Interface. Our previous article discussed configuring your router for wireless security with RADIUS authentication. We also discussed the Web UI and web RADIUS Interface, and configured our router to use it for the no OSP-3727A1. Como Entrar Al Router De Wind Telecom ((FULL)) image no need to read the name of the part :-> So in this tutorial we will be making a wireless access point router, the no OSP-3727A1, for our home network. Step 1: Configure your wireless adapter. Setup your wireless access point (AP). Setup your wireless router (WAP) with a Linux OS based operating system. The one that we will be using in this tutorial is OpenWRT. Download the latest OpenWRT (Optional). The no OSP-3727A1 is not the only router that supports WDS, but we recommend that you have this feature enabled.

Download and install OpenWRT (Optional). This is where the fun really starts! Start by installing the OpenWRT package repository. The no OSP-3727A1 uses the latest stable version of OpenWRT, but you can also choose to install the latest bleeding edge version. Prerequisites: Setup a repository. You can set up a repository using wget. However, for most users, a repository will be available for them. Open a terminal on your router and run the following command to see if you have a repository already.

Switch on the router and wait for a few minutes, while it scans for available wireless networks. If you have a router running OpenWRT, you should see your SSID listed in the list of wireless networks. The next step is to download the latest stable version of OpenWRT. Open a browser on your computer and visit the OpenWRT website. Then select the version you want to install.

Once you have the latest version of OpenWRT downloaded,
